

Chapter One

The lamp was still burning when the train pulled in.
Nobody on the platform looked up.

Chapter Two

She counted the stops out of habit, not need.

The city had rearranged itself again.

Chapter Three

By morning the rain had stopped.

He decided not to send the letter.